Proposal #1

As a sneaker collector for 15 years, I've had my fair share of experiencing success and disappointments when trying to buy sought-after, limited edition shoes. Obtaining these kinds of shoes is my passion, and I truly enjoy the thrill of the entire process from expectation, purchasing (may it be lining up in front of the stores or joining raffles) and end result of winning or losing a pair. I've seen the joy in a selected few people's faces after they purchase the shoes that everybody wants but couldn't get. I've also seen many disappointments and frustrations when people line up all night or all day only to find out that shoes have sold out. The sneakerhead culture is very important for big companies like Nike and Adidas. This is why exclusive shoe releases exist.

I would like to make a VIP sneakerhead trophy for sneaker enthusiasts. This trophy will let loyal sneaker-lovers go to a store and buy one pair of shoes of their size. To be selected, simply scan the QR code and join the discord group. Chosen winners will get their unique QR code printed on the trophy for store access. Join and share your story and tell us why you deserve one!

Rough Draft

Proposal #2

The Lost Red Ruby of Burma is finally found! This priceless gem that once belonged to a Burmese King mysteriously disappeared in 1885. When Britain invaded the country, the king had to leave, and colonizers looted the country's treasures and this 80 carat ruby was a part of it.

After 135 long years, this treasure was finally found in the Philippines. This is very important to the people of Myanmar. Help me send it back to the King's rightful descendant.
